We are so grateful to FoRPS for funding our Science Week workshops with a significant financial donation. On the 17th, the infants will enjoy some silly science (following on from last year's workshop), and the following week the juniors will be learning more about forensic science.

Another huge thank you to Mr Endersby for offering to put up our flagpole – the only person who did! Sir, you are a superhero and we are all very grateful. The Young Interpreters are looking forward to flying flags to celebrate special international days.

What luxury to be able to come to school in our pyjamas and slippers today, and hopefully you received your World Book Day voucher. We are looking forward to author James Campbell's writing workshops on 10th June (the first day he was available!)

We were so pleased to take some Year 1 children to read to the residents at De Lucy House again this week. We set up this super community link pre-Covid & we have been waiting to be able to return. Thank you Miss Willer for organising this fortnightly activity.

The 100% attendance prize draw winner this week is ...

Enjoy spending your £10 Amazon voucher!

Another thank you to FoRPS for paying for the coach to take the Year 6s to Crucial Crew. This is a county-run, interactive afternoon when children are put in a range of scenarios designed to teach them about safety in different circumstances & situations.

What a fabulous bunch of fundraisers you are! So far we have received over £500, and we would love to make the grand total even more. Please send in any money you have collected by Monday 13th March. Thank you.

We will be organising a careers fair for the junior children in the summer term & would like a wide range of jobs represented. If you or someone you know would like to come along to talk about your work to inspire our young people, please email the office.

We would very much appreciate parents not parking on the grass beyond the yellow lines in Manor Road. You are trespassing, destroying the grass & upsetting the neighbours.
